DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 9-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Doi et al. (US 4919402).

Doi et al. disclose a spring/mass vibratory force coupler (Fig. 2) with variable damping and variable spring stiffness for coupling masses to a reference mass including a first mass (the engine) coupled to a second mass (the chassis) via a first spring KE and a second spring KO independent of the first spring, arranged in parallel, a damper CO, arranged between the second spring and the first mass wherein a damping function of the damper may be varied based on an application of a voltage to an electrorheological or magnetorheological fluid contained therein so as to provide a continuously variable spring stiffness, wherein when the damping function of the damper is turned off, the second spring couples the first mass and the second mass without any damping function.

Re claim 10, see small mass m.

Re claim 11, see coupling element 34

Re claim 12, see mass 22

Re claim 13, see Fig. 2

Re claim 14, see col. 3 lines 35-40

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 27 January 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., the spring being a coil spring as opposed to an elastomeric spring) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Moreover, the equivalence between springs made of elastomeric material and non-elastomeric material is well known. See, for example, Machael (US5778803) at col. 6 lines 12-20, and/or Ivers et al. (US5730429) at col. 4 lines 59-67, and/or Smith (US4623132) at col. 3 lines 50-63).

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
